“Home Sweet Home.”

“Tom! I say—Tom! Oh, dear me, where is that boy now. I wonder! Never round when you want him! I never did see the like!”

Thus soliloquized Mrs. Vinaigrette, as she ran about the kitchen, with her hands covered with dough and her face corrugated with scowl.

“Oh, there you are, you young good-for-nothing!” she continued, as Tom hove in sight. “What d'ye mean by runnin' off in this manner when you knew well enough that the settin'-room fire was to be built, and the ashes sifted, and the water to get, and a hundred other things to do, and me with my hands in the dough, and nobody to do nothin'. You lazy rascal!”

“Why, mother,” ventured Tom, “you sent me to buy some coffee—”

“Yes, so I did, but I didn't tell you to go moppin' all the way, nor to be all day about it, neither.”

“I went just as quick as I could,” said Tom, with a half-whimper.

“Don't you dare to contradict me, sarsaparilla box. Your father'll hear how you talk to your mother, young man. Here, take that pail and git me some water, and be quick about it, too!”

Tom seized the pail and vanished, only too glad to get beyond the sound of the maternal voice.

“Did any one ever see such a boy?” inquired Mrs. Vinaigrette, appealing to the mantel clock; but the mantel clock made no other reply than “tick, tick,” or it might have been “hush, hush,” for the little clock showed not the least particle of excitement, its calm white face beaming out upon the kitchen and upon Mrs. Vinaigrette as tranquilly as ever.

Indeed, it is more than probable that the unsympathetic conduct of the mantel clock aggravated rather than calmed the ruffled temper of Mrs. Vinaigrette.

“Other people have children that are helps to their parents.” And as she laid down this proposition she shot a defiant glance at the mantel clock, as if she were saying: “Deny it, if you dare!”

As the mantel clock did not attempt to gainsay this apparently incontrovertible assertion, Mrs. Vinaigrette repeated it by way of emphasis.

“Other people have children that are helps to their parents; but that Tom worries the life out of me every hour in the day. I don't see how it is that Tom isn't like other boys. Lord knows I work and slave for him from Monday mornin' to Saturday night, a workin' and a-diggin' all the time—and that's all the thanks I git for it. And the way he sarses me! Tell n' me he went's quick's he could! No wonder I'm almost worn out! There's that Charley White, now! If Tom was only like him! So perlite to strangers and so 'tentive to his mother! She never has to tell him twice to do a thing—“Oh, you've got back, have you?” cried Mrs. Vinaigrette, addressing her remarks to Tom, who had just made his appearance; “there, don't spill it all over the floor! All you think of is makin' work for your mother. You needn't git any more. I'll do it myself. You'd like to keep me a-moppin' up the floor all day long, wouldn't you, you heedless thing! Come, Slowpoke, it's time you was off to school. No time to build the settin'-room fire now. You planned it nicely, didn't you? Come, be off!”

Tom slunk out of the house in a half-melancholy, half-angry mood, and walked listlessly towards the schoolhouse. And he didn't brighten up until he had arrived there and heard the teacher's cheery “Good morning, Tom!” Then his home trials and troubles were forgotten in a moment and his face was bright and happy throughout the forenoon. At recess his laugh was the loudest, his voice was the most gleeful and his limbs the most active in the schoolboy sports. Not until he was nearly home at close of school did the sunlight of youth and happiness again become hidden behind the clouds that had darkened his face in the morning.

“Seems to me it takes you an awful while to come up home from school!” was the greeting that reached Tom's ears as he entered the house. “Great good it is for me to stand over a hot stove all the forenoon, and have everythin' git stone cold waitin' for your movements! No wonder I'm almost aggravated to death! If I don't go crazy yet, it'll be no fault of yours. Come, set down! Don't be a standin' there like a moon calf!”

Tom swallowed his dinner as best he could. Every mouthful stuck in his throat, and he left the table as soon as possible. But the upbraidings o' his mother did not cease. The con inued with surprisin' energy for a woman whose lie was worried out of her so frequently until it was time for Tom to start for school again, to be agan renewed, with additions and improvements, in the evening.

Evening brought with it Mr. Vinaigrette, also. Tom was not permitted to go out after supper. “Boys got no good in the streets,” Tom's father often remarked. So Tom was kept in where he could benefit by parental example.

The evening had one respite, at least. Tom's father usually stayed at home, reading the paper. Therefore there was little opportunity for Mrs. V.'s exercising her lingual powers. But Tom's father, unfortunately, had nerves, and as the least movement on Tom's part brought a scowl to his father's face, and quite often a sharp word to Tom's ears, the boy was in constant and continual misery, and he was only too glad when he was ordered off to bed, with the injunction, which took the place of “Good night!” “Now, you mind and git up when you're called to-morrow mornin'!”

The above is a fair picture of the average day in Tom's life. Strange that Tom isn't like other people's children—Charley White, for instance—and no wonder that Tom miles grimly when he hears anybody remark: “There's no place like home!”—Boston Transcript.

A Gallant Deed.

Charles T. Vansant, who was killed on the Pennsylvania Railroad the other evening, was the hero of one of the most gallant episodes of the late war. He bore the colors of his regiment at Ball's Bluff, and when, during a desperate charge, his Colonel was shot, he bore him from the field, and then returned, amid a hail of bullets, to rescue the tag. Five times was he captured by the Rebels, and regaled by Vansant in a hand-to-hand struggle. At last he broke away with the flag and reached the river. His enemies were at his very heels, but he plunged into the water, dived to the bottom, placed the flag there under a stone, and then swam to the other shore and escaped. Afterward he revisited the spot, and succeeded in finding and restoring to the regiment the flag he had so desperately defended.

—More hay is injured by not being dried enough than by being dried too much. One extreme is equally as bad as the other. Clover, for instance, if allowed to become too dry in the sun will lose all of its leaves and its blossoms, and the stocks that are left are of little value. On the other hand, if put in the mow too soon it will become mow burnt, and equally worthless. A little of last year's hay to mix with each load as it is put in the mow is very desirable, absorbing the moisture from the new hay.—Farmer's Magazine.

THE debt of Ohio is about $5,000,000.

THE governor of Florida reports a full treasury and says taxes may be reduced. Democratic state.

FOUR hundred and fifty short horns were sold at Lexington during 1882. They averaged $300 a head.

"UNCLE TOM" shows are not allowed in the state of South Carolina, and the Drummer inquires: Can't the South Carolina law be adopted as an amendment to the constitution of the U. S?

To hold all officers strictly accountable honesty supreme in public affairs; to lighten the burdens of workingmen by reducing taxation and public expenditures, is Jeffersonian democracy and it will do stand by it.

FIVE persons were burned to death in the Planter's hotel at St. Louis on Sunday. The rest of the people, over three hundred in number, escaped in their night clothes. The loss caused by the fire amounted to about $30,000.

ON steel, of the kind and quality used in making farming tools, the tariff commission raised the duty from $50.40 to $61.60 per ton. And this is a sample of the "relief" the bill furnishes for the farming interests.

OWING to recent improvements in the Institute for feeble minded children at Frankfort, there is now room for fifty more. There are at present one hundred and forty-three inmates. The expenses of the Institution last year, which includes buildings, were $34,446.32.

THE tariff bill now pending in congress provides for reductions that amount to $79,849,324, of which $45,049,000, is taken from the tariff and $34,790,324, from the internal revenue. All internal revenue taxes except that imposed upon tobacco, spirits and beer are abolished by the bill.

THE London Observer in its retrospect of 1882, referring to the obituary record of the year, says: A year which has witnessed the disappearance of Charles Darwin from the ranks of science, Tait and Pusey from the church, and Longfellow, Rossetti and Trollope from literature, has certainly levied tributes from us with no too sparing a hand.

GEN. JOHN B. GORDON, of Georgia, comes home from Europe proud of his country. He said to a reporter: "It is enough to make an American proud to ride through the streets of London, with its civilization of two thousand years, and see American implements, American sewing machines, American tools, and American goods displayed on every hand, and know that American watches are being sold in the stores, and American fields are feeding the English people and American factories beginning to clothe them."

NEWS BREVITIES.

Peter Murphy, a quarryman, was found dead on the railroad near Greencastle, Ind. Froze to death.

A little child of Wm. Kesler, at Lockland, O., was burned to death from its dress catching fire at the grate.

The Allison family of Millersburg, O., have advanced a claim to a large portion of the real estate of Washington, D. C.

At San Felipe, Texas, Jose Morales dashed his child's brains out and then shot and killed his wife. Likely to be lynched.

Isaac E. Martin, in the Ohio penitentiary, from Champaign county, died of consumption. His time would have expired in eight days.

A widow at Fairmount, W. Va., jumped with her child from a suspension bridge fifty-two feet down into the Monongahela river, and both were saved.

Henry Prouse Cooper, the New York pistol monomaniac, was again on trial for threatening to shoot a man obnoxious to him. He is going to Europe now.

Dr. Samuel A. Mudd, of Charles county, Md., who served a term in the Dry Tortugas for harboring John Wilkes Booth, died at his residence, near Bryantown, Md., Wednesday last.

During the performance of a circus in Russian-Poland, a fire broke out and before the spectators could escape the whole structure was in a blaze. Three hundred persons perished.

The impression was made by the testimony of the ex-treasurer Heinrichs, of Auglaize county, at Wapakoneta, O., that the forgeries were committed by his employees without his knowledge.

Near Pinnacle Springs, Ark, a colored man named Lindsey shot and killed a white man named Hubbard, because the latter, with a party of men, tried to drive Lindsey away from the land which he had entered.

It is now said that Reeder Moore, who suocided at Waterford, Pa., a few days ago, made a dying confession exonerating Charles Stafford, who served eight years for rape, Moore saying that he alone was guilty.

James A. Savage and Samuel Joyce, alias "the Kid," young men in love with a girl wearing the red ribbon of the salvation army, and located in "the Barracks," in Christopher street, New York, met in a liquor saloon in Washington street, and quarreled over the fair sinner-saver. Joyce finally stabbed Savage, probably fatally.

ROSSER & McCARTHY,
PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

ED. MYALL IS AS happy man
As any in the town;
Instead of quitting trade he got
Five hundred dollars down.
He doesn't wear a graveyard look
Because they chose to rue it,
For, to speak the honest truth,
He "didn't want to do it."

"SCRAPS" is a very funny creation and is well carried out by the company. So says the Courier-Journal.

MR. JOHN B. BASKIN, of Louisville, is in town this week on legal business. He was sworn in as an attorney at the Mason county bar, Tuesday.

THE colored people of Washington have organized a brass band. It is said to be making fair progress under the instruction of a competent musician.

THE Chicago Times in speaking of the Jolly Pathfinders, who are to appear here on Friday, the 19th inst., says: "They are a very entertaining party."

THE ladies will be pleased to learn that Messrs. Hunt & Doyle have just received a large stock of the latest styles of hamberg edgings, which they are selling very cheap.

THE clerk of the Boyd circuit court has forwarded all the papers, clothing and other articles connected with the Neal and Craft case, to Grayson, Carter county where the trial takes place February 7th.

MR. THOMAS HICKEY has opened a saloon on the corner of Market and Front streets in the room formerly occupied by George H. Wheeler, and will keep at all times a stock of the finest and purest liquors.

THE Missionary Mite Society of the First Presbyterian church will meet this evening at the residence of Mr. Jaquith. A free lunch will be served. The friends of the congregation are cordially invited.

NAVIGATION of the Ohio river is suspended at Pittsburg, but the Monongahela is reported to be rising. The ice in the river here is thicker to-day, but does not interfere with the running of the local packets.

MESSRS. MCILVAINE, CARR AND REESE, who had arranged to buy the stock and good will of the business of Myall & Riley, have been released by paying a forfeit of $500. Messrs. Myall and Riley will continue the business as usual.

DURING the present term of the circuit court in addition to the divorces mentioned in Monday's issue, Mrs. Matty Taylor was granted a divorce from her husband, W. H. B. Taylor, known as "Berry" Taylor, on the grounds of habitual drunkenness. Sarah J. Burton was also divorced from George W. Burton on the grounds of abandonment and extreme cruelty.

THE Lexington Transcript says: United States Marshal Heflin was in the city yesterday. In conversation with a Transcript reporter, he said: "I don't think there will be any trouble in Carter county. The people held a meeting and resolved to see that quiet was maintained. I'll guarantee that I can take my five men and take Neal and Craft there and protect them. When there was talk of sending troops to quiet the Triplett Bridge trouble, I volunteered to go there, took some of my men with me, arrested some of the ringleaders, and that quieted the thing. I don't think any troops are necessary in Carter county."

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

MR. H. C. Thompson and wife, of Lexington, are the guests of the family of Mr. A. A. Wadsworth.

MR. J. Henry Pecor, who has been East buying his spring stock of boots and shoes, returned on Monday.

MR. John L. Case, formerly of this city, is publishing the "Monthly Guest," a family journal, at Austin, Texas.

MR. Newton Briney, of the Republican, left last night for Covington to take a position in one of the printing offices there.

THE Commercial-Gazette says: Father Mackey, the popular pastor of St. Patrick's church, corner of Third and Mill streets, has been granted a leave of absence for one year by Bishop Elder. The St. Mary's seminary at Emmitsburg, Md., one of the oldest Catholic institutions of its character in the country, is deeply in debt, and efforts are being made to save it by having priests from the different sections of the country go on missions and endeavor, by making every possible effort, to collect money to liquidate the debt. With this object in view, the Right Reverend Bishop selected Father Mackey from this diocese. During his absence Rev. Father Hickey will act as parish priest of St. Patrick's.

Egg Balls.

Boil four eggs ten minutes; drop into cold water, and when cool remove the yolks; pound these in a mortar until reduced to a paste, and then beat them with a teaspoonful of salt, a speck of pepper and the white of one raw egg; form in balls about the size of a walnut; roll in flour and fry brown in butter or chicken fat, being careful not to burn.

AT the present term of the circuit court the grand jury indicted justices John L. Grant and Wm. Pepper for making out and presenting fraudulent and incorrect claims against the commonwealth of Kentucky. The matter was brought to the attention of the authorities just after the October term of court.

Religious.

THE Southern Presbyterian congregation will have services at the Third street church next Sunday morning and evening. Preaching by Rev. Dr. Blanton. All are invited.

COUNTY POINTS.

STONE LICK.

Wheat is looking badly. Our girls are cheerful and happy.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wallingford think of visiting friends near Mayslick, shortly.

Mrs. Maria Ruse and Miss Salie Laytham attended Divine service at Mt. Gilead, last Sunday.

Mr. Gordon, who recently was bereft of his wife, has returned to Clark county, his home, leaving two of his little ones with Mrs. Laytham, their grandmother.

Dr. Barnes has a saw mill cutting his timber up into lumber, he contemplates building a tobacco barn and a dwelling house also. The doctor is an enterprising gentleman.

Miss Hattie Key one of our acknowledged belles and the desire of several of our worthy young gentlemen, is visiting relatives in Fleming county. Hattie comes home. Hub has returned.

Mr. Samuel Sweet, of Plumville, was a soldier in the Mexican war, we have no doubt about his making a good one. The Mexicans had no magnifying sights on their muskets. He therefore went through unsighted.

Our public school closes week after next. The scholars have progressed with their studies, thanks to our efficient teacher Mrs. Rollin, whose scholars and patrons will ever remember her with pleasure and gratitude.

He who said that our friend Mr. Bateman was afraid to get married because he would have to sit (well live in the same house) with his wife did him great injustice to say the least. Friend Noah I will show her.

Mr. W. T. Calvert, owing to the inclemency of the weather did not get to his church last Saturday. He has been a member for nearly twenty years and has missed only two times during that time? Who can beat it?

There is talk of one our fair young widows at Mt. Gilead falling a victim to Cupids darts. A wealthy widow of Mt. Carmel is said to be the fortunate one, but there is many a slip between the cup and lip, and nothing sure but taxation.

The meanest of hypocrisy is that which prompts those who have destroyed a good name in an unguarded moment, to try to keep their place in society by trying to flatter and hang on to those they have slandered and cast off. It would be more to their credit to do as did Judas of old "go out and hang themselves."

Miss Etna Prather, one of the most talented and accomplished teachers it has been our providence to meet is still visiting relatives at Mt. Gilead. An entertainment was given in her honor last Saturday. Several friends were present paying her their compliments. She has lately visited friends in Fronton, Ohio, making several conquests and enjoying several entertainments given in her honor there.

Our entertaining friend Mr. Herbert Ridgely has returned from Carlisle, where he has been rusticating for some weeks past. He attended several hops and socials making many acquaintances, some very fascinating ones too. We were very fearful he would forget his little dulcinea, but our fears were set at rest when the first thing he attended to after resting at home was to make her a call, but lo! and behold the fair one was spending a few days with relatives in Fleming. Be patient, but it is all right, only paying you off in your own coin.

REPORTER.

MURPHYSVILLE.

We are still having a little weather.

Miss Etna Prather has gone to Mt. Gilead for a few days recreation. She will return this week.

The first meeting of the literary society was a success.

A party and supper at the residence of W. M. Ballard last Tuesday night, was enjoyed by a number from here.

The BULLETIN seems to be "the" paper at this place, judging from the size of the bundle left every Thursday. Welcome into every household is that which doeth the most good.

The snow did not remain long, and it is lucky for some horses that we know of that it did not.

There is not much sickness in or around Murphysville, which is remarkable, taking the weather into consideration.

Chess is the popular amusement here. Dr. Gault wears the belt at present.

Pray excuse us, "Reporter," for incorrectly quoting from the good book. We were raised in the Baptist faith, and it is often said they generally quote scripture to suit themselves, be it right or wrong.

There is talk of the Masons organizing a lodge here. "If" they do, a hall will be erected.

Rev. Hanford failed to put in an appearance Sunday morning. This is something uncommon for him, as he is very regular. Sickness probably kept him away.

Only one dance to report this week. That was at Mr. John Gault's. The boys say it was "the occasion."

It is fun to see a crowd scatter when they see the bus drive up and have a certain trunk to unload. It belongs to a school ma'am, is of Jumbo dimensions, and Tom Worthington says it weighs a ton.

T. T. Worthington will erect a fine dwelling on the farm lately purchased by him of John E. Rhodes. Messrs. Ball & McCarthy will do the carpenter work.

Joe Stevenson has sold his interest in the Murphysville woolen and grist mill, to Geo. Wood, who will continue the business, with Ed. Laytham, who has had years of experience, as chief miller, and J. H. Wright in charge of the woolen department. Success to all parties.

There has been less family disturbance and fewer rackets in this place this winter than any place in the county. While we are in a boastful way we also want it known that there are more pretty women here than most anywhere else. The last sentence is written by request from a stranger visiting not far from the village.

The prospect for ice is not very good. Those who intended to gather missed it by not taking advantage of the first freeze.

The melancholy days have come, The saddest of the year, Not quite cold enough for whisky, A little too cool for beer.

They say that in Fleming county women can be bought at the rate of $12.50 per head with a three-year-old kid thrown in. Splendid inducements for emigrants.

This is an off week for news. We have not heard nor seen much with AYER'S Hair Vigor improves the beauty of the hair and promotes its growth. It imparts an attractive appearance, a delightful and lasting perfume. While it stimulates the roots, cleanses the scalp, and adds elegance to luxuriance, its effects are enduring; and thus it proves itself to be the best and cheapest article for toilet use.

Political Mentions.

John Hancock, when he was governor of Massachusetts, said: "I disclaim all other than open, undisguised politics."

A bill is to be introduced in the house making graduates of West Point serve three years as non-commissioned officers before getting their epaulettes. This is to bring them into more perfect accord and sympathy with the rank and file of the army.

It has taken Ben Butler since 1859, when he was first a candidate, to become governor of one state. At the same rate of progress, how long will it take him to become president of all the states?

Senator Mahone is reported to have visited the president and informed him that he did not want Col. Mosby appointed United States district judge for Virginia, to succeed Rives. It is also reported that the senator was not pleased with the reception accorded his declaration.

The Hon. Samuel J. Randall is said to approve enthusiastically of the suggestion that the next speaker of the House of representatives be provided with a gavel fashioned after the model of G. Washington's memorable little hatchet.

Gov. Foster believes that the best way to deal with the liquor traffic in Ohio is the simplest way. He recommends that a constitutional amendment be submitted to the people, leaving the whole matter in the control of the legislature, and that then a tax uniform throughout the state be imposed upon the saloon keepers.

Dr. Wm. A. McDonald, of Lynn, Mass., has brought suit claiming $10,000 damages against Rev. Patrick Strain, of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, who charged the physician was unskillful, and advised people not to employ him.

Notes of the Day.

Butler wants book-keeping taught in our schools.

Jay Gould is said to be pale and cadaverous looking.

A demand for vaccine virus comes from Georgia places.

Roscoe Conkling's beard has become nearly snow white.

Dr. Susan Edison has just celebrated her sixtieth birthday.

Two Atlanta dogs slew ninety-two rats in thirty-five busy minutes.

Clover grows luxuriantly in Minnesota vales where it wouldn't sixteen years ago.

At the three vegetarian restaurants in London an average of 1,550 dinners are served daily.

A marriage notice in the Elmira Advertiser tops off in this way: "No cards, no cake, no flowers, no presents and nobody's business."

A man drew a crowd at Westfield, Mass., by going home with a fashionable bonnet on his head. He was winning that article on a wager.

California is not generally considered a cotton state, yet one plantation in Sonoma county this season yielded 40,000 pounds from 225 acres.

According to a local newspaper, cattle valued at $13,500,000 are now grazing in what was six years ago absolutely Indian country in Texas.

Manitoba bachelors are advertising in Canadian papers for wives. Any young lady who can milk, chop wood, run a plow and stack hay, has no trouble in finding a good husband.

Hole-in-the-Day, a Chippewa Indian, and son of the famous chief of that name, started out on a lecturing tour in Minnesota. His first audience yielded him $2.50, and that ended the venture.

A girl traveled all the way from Massachusetts to Montana to marry a man whom she had never seen, but who by letter had promised to wed her. She searched the Territory in vain for him.

The New York Evening Post says that it is the right of trial by jury that encourages suits for breach of promise; and intimates that if tried by judges, very few plaintiffs would make out their cases.

The Philadelphia Record publishes a list showing that no less than two hundred and seven persons mysteriously disappeared from that city in 1882, of whom no trace has ever been obtained by the police or any one else.

Lord Rosebery's Christmas gift to the tenants on his Mentmore estates was the remission of 15 per cent. of their half-yearly rent. He had done the same for six years previously. He also gave every cottager in the villages on his estates six hundred weight of coal, and a joint of beef, of weight proportioned to the size of the family.

Manuel Blasos, commonly called "Old Blazes," is a New Mexican gambler, with a portable hell on wheels. This is a car, something like those used by traveling photographers, but is as bright and gay as a circus band wagon, and is drawn by six handsome horses. The interior contains a faro table, a roulette wheel, and other fixtures for gambling. Manuel has several assistants and goes from place to place according to the outlook for profitable business. Thus he is sure to appear at every large fair within 200 miles of the Mexican border on either side. A new and prosperous mining camp offers inducements, too, and lately he established himself close to a Texas camp meeting with pecuniary profit. He has the reputation of running square games, and his party goes so well armed that they defy robbers.

It was noted in Australia, in her convict days, that the ticket of leavers who went into trade were much more punctiliously honest than the average tradesman. They felt they were the objects of jealous notice, and that numbers were waiting to catch them tripping and exclaim, "didn't I tell you so?" Looking at the heavy percentage of these men who become exemplary citizens and fathers of worthy families, it is a matter for profound regret that the system had to be abandoned. The convict in England to-day is, as here, continually driven back against his better self into crime and breeds a criminal family. Australia to-day has thousands of citizens, wealthy, honored and highly educated, who but for their fathers having been sent to the antipodes would be thieves and outcasts.
